Join us as a sponsor for West Virginia's first-ever New Energy Conference focusing on opportunities for utility-scale solar, wind and energy storage technologies!

West Virginians have long harnessed the state's plentiful natural resources to fuel American economic prosperity and this event will focus on strategies to continue that proud tradition throughout the 21st century. Technological advances in renewable energy have driven costs down, creating a major opportunity for West Virginia to become a true all-of-the-above energy exporting powerhouse.

At this day-long conference and reception, you'll hear from and connect with West Virginia's leaders and industry experts about the near-term opportunities for private investment and job creation in the Mountain State's expanding renewable energy industries.
